Shreveport Mayor Adrian Perkins was invited to Smart City Summit hosted by U.S. Conference of Mayors and SXSW.

Mayor Perkins was selected, along with a handful of other Mayors from around the country, to participate in Civic I/O. Civic I/O is the Mayors Summit at SXSW (South by Southwest), the world-famous event held every year in Austin, TX. The summit is a partnership between SXSW and the United States Conference of Mayors.

Civic I/O brings together forward-thinking mayors, futurists, philanthropists, and industry leaders to explore how technology can overcome the challenges municipalities face. This year topics include the upcoming Census, health equity, economic development, and much more. The Summit begins Thursday, March 7th and runs through Sunday, March 10th.

"I am grateful that the U.S. Conference of Mayors chose me to participate in this year's conference at SXSW," Mayor Adrian Perkins said. "This conference is a hub of innovation. It puts city leaders in touch with entrepreneurs and technologists, enabling us to work together to overcome the challenges facing our communities. I look forward to the event and am proud to represent my Shreveport at SXSW."
