

CITY OF SHREVEPORT
MAYOR ADRIAN PERKINS

For Media Inquiries Only:

Lyman McKellar

Assistant Communications Director

Lyman.McKellar@shreveportla.gov

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

12/26/2022

System-Wide Boil Advisory Continues

The Department of Water and Sewerage says certain areas of the City of Shreveport are experiencing little to no water pressure. Repairs in those areas will be prioritized to improve water pressure. This will mean intermittent spans of low or no water pressure in areas that currently have water service. This will be temporary but continue throughout the day.

As we are coming out of the holiday weekend and businesses are reopening, repair crews can address private leaks that have been significant contributors to the low pressure the city is experiencing.

Crews continue to work around the clock assisting customers with shut-offs and containing main breaks as they find them. Crews are also out checking fire hydrants to bleed off air pockets that may hinder water pressure from reaching low-pressure areas. Please be mindful of our crews on the streets as you drive through the City. These measures will allow us to achieve system pressure throughout the city more quickly and lift the voluntary boil advisory.

####