Shreveport Woman Arrested Following Violent Altercation with Police

Quashayvea Washington

On May 16, 2025, just after 5:00 p.m., Shreveport Police officers responded to a reported dispute at a residence in the 7300 block of Altus Loop. Upon arrival, officers discovered that Quashayvea Washington had been involved in a physical altercation with her adult daughter.

As officers attempted to initiate an investigation, Washington became increasingly aggressive and began physically swinging her arms at two officers. She then shoved one officer into a glass window. In response to the escalating violence, another officer deployed a taser to safely bring Washington under control.

After being taken into custody, Washington was transported to a local hospital for evaluation. She has since been charged with one count of domestic abuse battery, two counts of battery on a police officer, and two counts of resisting an officer with force or violence.

This incident had the potential to end far worse. We are grateful that no serious injuries occurred and commend our officers for their professionalism and restraint in handling a volatile and dangerous situation.
