PRESS RELEASE

November 6, 2014

Public planning session for Cross Bayou set for Nov. 13

The next public event in the Cross Bayou Corridor planning process will take place Thursday (Nov. 13) in the Eaves Room of the Shreve Memorial Library in downtown Shreveport.

This workshop starts at 10 a.m. and follows the previous presentation, bayou boat tour and design charrette held in September. The upcoming workshop includes stakeholders, media and the public, all of whom will have the opportunity to review research, mapping and visioning documents and tentative plans for the Cross Bayou site produced by students and faculty from Louisiana Tech University's School of Design and previous charrette participants.

The Providence planning team will make a special presentation at noon, summarizing findings, proposed planning principles and design strategies for the site's development.

The Shreveport/Caddo Master Plan highlights the Cross Bayou site for eventual redevelopment, envisioning a mixed-use residential neighborhood while ensuring public waterfront access and connectivity to the downtown area and adjacent neighborhoods. This event will provide another opportunity for participants to review and comment on proposals for the site's redevelopment and better understand how all the desired development ideas for the site should related to each other while ensuring ample, public access to Cross Bayou and new recreational opportunities.

The public is urged to visit the project's website at www.crossbayoucorridor.com and follow the project on Facebook at www.facebook.com/crossbayoucorridor for information on progress, to access reports and learn of upcoming project events. For more information, or to submit questions or comments, contact the project manager at pm1@crossbayoucorridor.com.
