FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Police announce appointment of interim deputy chief

A veteran Shreveport Police officer will be taking on a new role within the department in the wake of the upcoming retirement of a long time senior administrator.

With approval from the Honorable Mayor Ollie S. Tyler, Chief of Police Willie Shaw has named current Chief Administrative Assistant Bill Goodin as interim deputy chief of police for the Shreveport Police Department. Chief Goodin will fill a vacancy created by the imminent retirement of Deputy Chief Duane Huddleston, who proudly served the citizens of Shreveport for over 34 years.

Goodin, who has served as the department's chief administrative assistant since 2012, began his career with the Shreveport Police Department in August of 1993. Since that time, Chief Goodin served as a patrolman and spent almost 12 years as a community liaison officer before being tapped as the department's public information officer. "Chief Goodin displays dedication, professionalism and leadership skills at the highest level and will provide continuity during this transitional period as the department seeks to permanently fill the position of deputy chief of police and chief of police" says Chief Willie Shaw.
